Rav Michael Laitman

How does creation work
Where did I come from
What's the reason for my existence
Why is there suffering
What is nature
Can I direct my destiny
Have I been here before
Are there really answers
What's the goal of life
How can we avoid global war
Why is pleasure temporary
Is humanity ready for true high technology

KABBALAH ?

Thousands of years of material progress are finally bringing mankind to the realization that we are entering a dead end, with no available path in sight for solving our problems. We are reaching a point where we are afraid to move forward, because every step forward only brings more suffering, for each individual and mankind as a whole. We find ourselves in a state of complete disorientation just like the unborn child in its mother's womb who can only emerge after a painful series of contractions.

Mankind must elevate itself to a completely new degree and quality of awareness where it relates to all the world's phenomena in a different manner.

A totally new situation is developing before our eyes, and we have no idea how to relate to it, or make decisions regarding the future as we have done in the past. This is because we have gotten the most that we can out of man's basic nature, and it is beginning to dawn on us that all the progress in the world is not going to bring us happiness. Religions no longer provide the satisfaction people seek, medical advances are not helping us become happier and healthier, technology is only helping us destroy one another, psychology is not helping keep the family unit intact, scientific advances are accelerating unemployment, and culture is gradually being replaced by cheap thrills. We have no idea how to go about finding security within ourselves because all the things we used to build our dreams on are fading away.

The wisdom of Kabbalah teaches us about the way things should be in the world.

Therefore people who study the authentic sources are at a higher level of development than the rest of humanity and experience the world's phenomena in a different manner. These people are beyond the crisis mankind finds itself in today because they are already in the midst of pursuing the state that mankind needs to reach. But that state is hidden to the unaware just as the unborn child in the mother's womb cannot imagine what will be one second before it emerges into the world.

A new study group is now being formed in Toronto under the supervision of Bnei Baruch (Israel)

The events of September 11 were only the beginning of the worldwide awakening. Mankind has the ability to experience these necessary situations in our development in a much more pleasant and convenient manner by understanding what we are going through, the reasons for it, and where it is taking us. We need to understand where the forces of nature are driving us in order to undergo this process in a state of awareness. We can eliminate watching our options dwindle down a continually narrowing path by taking an active role in this new scenario. In the final call, only an enhanced awareness of the situation the world currently finds itself in can light the way for the rest of mankind.

Kabbalah is not mysticism. It is not religion. It is the science closest to man with a methodology suitable for all people regardless of gender, race, religion or nationality.
