The Point Of Choice

How does one overcome the obstacles that arise regarding the upcoming Congress?

I think that if someone can come to the Congress, then he should make an effort and arrive, even if it means that he has to take a loan from the bank and return it over several months and also if it is on account of vacation days. Everything depends on the importance, and I don't think that there is anything as important than to be together for a few days. It is a spiritual investment. We don't understand how much the connection between people results in advancement.

People that are not able to arrive need to ask themselves what the reason is, and take stock. This is the point of choice and decision of each one—to advance spiritually or not.
