

The Daily Page

June 11, 2010

Taken from the Daily Kabbalah Lesson of Dr. Michael Laitman and Bnei Baruch

The Wondrous Attraction Of Spirituality

Question: Is it possible to ask the Creator to give points in the heart to those who haven't yet awakened?

Dr. Laitman's Answer: We need to pray for the whole of humanity to quickly reach a true spiritual need for the goal of creation. However, to pray means for you to aspire for inner unification with such tension and force that it will be felt by everyone else like a fire that is blazing within.

Imagine humanity today like a nearly lifeless body, maybe not completely dead yet, but in a state of unconsciousness. Imagine that we are its organs trying to revive ourselves and bring back life to this common organism. Gradually the whole body begins to awaken. This constitutes our work.

The most important work in dissemination is not in external efforts (the amount of books we release or materials on the internet); it is in the unification between us through which we rouse love, connection, and warmth in our whole worldwide unification of people who study Kabbalah. It is precisely this work that influences everyone else, and they suddenly begin to feel that there is something unique in all this! But what it is exactly, they don't know. Nonetheless, they suddenly find us.

After all, every person's heart somehow led him to Kabbalah though he himself didn't understand how. It's simply that once this need arose in him, he began to search, and suddenly he felt with his heart that his place is here. This is because his desire was already aimed in the same direction.

It was a very small desire for spirituality, a point in the heart that was hiding deep within, but we ignited such a powerful fire that people felt it from afar. Therefore, everything depends on our inner unification. This is the most effective dissemination.

-from the 1st part of the Daily Kabbalah Lesson 6/11/10