

The Daily Page

May 27, 2010

Taken from the Daily Kabbalah Lesson of Dr. Michael Laitman and Bnei Baruch

Just Cling To Each Other!

The Light acts on our will that is similar to Him. This measure of congruence between the will and the Light is called faith. If I read Kabbalistic sources with a purely egoistical desire and purpose, they will not affect me.

The point in the heart is a broken point; it draws a person to spirituality but only because he feels bad. He isn't yearning yet for the "Good that does Good," for bestowal and love. So far, he simply isn't satisfied with earthly life; the future is dark and life has no purpose. These simply provide an egoistic motivation for seeking spirituality. The Light, however, cannot affect such a desire, even from afar. It acts on the will according to the measure of faith in it; that is, it acts only on one's yearning for bestowal.

Faith is tested by a person's devotion to the path and purpose. One must check the purity of his intention to attain the quality of bestowal. Faith itself, the attribute of bestowal, is received from Above as a reward for efforts made. When one is deserving, then the "night" will end and he will see "the light of day."

If a person uses Torah for his own egoistical fulfillment, it becomes the potion of death for him. This means he is not only "spiritually dead," but he is also "drugged" by death because he thinks that it is spiritual life! He raises his egoism even higher and cannot believe that he is living in deception.

Exit to the truth: If we do everything together, if everyone receives from all the others such forces that one can easily demand the Surrounding Light (Ohr Makif) to act on him, then the path becomes a wonderful adventure. Just cling to each other!

If you stay alone, a wall immediately grows before you; if you unite with the others in order to walk together, the wall immediately falls and becomes a wide highway. There is either a wall or the highway, and the choice is to be among friends each moment, or not. Everything is done by the Upper Light; we must obey only this one condition.

-from the 2nd part of the Daily Kabbalah Lesson 5/27/10